WILLIAMS' APPOINTMENTS.

The Hon. Charles G. Williams will address Republican meetings as follows:

Burlington, Friday, October 20.

Ex-Governor Lucius Fairchild and General E. L. Bryant will speak at Geneva, Saturday, October 28.

Barnum, Monday, October 30.

Whitewater, Tuesday, October 31.

The mistakes of the temperance party are "too numerous to mention."

The "independents" are spending a good deal of time and money to make a warm canvass—but the net proceeds will be—defeat.

The Hazeltonites have started a daily morning paper in Madison, which will support Hazelton for congress. This is a good thing. It will give employment to a few needy hands during the campaign, and will do Keyes no harm.

If the word of Barum, Bailey & Hutchinson can be believed, they made $800,000 clear, from their show this season. This is a third more than the show made last year. It would have been better if Comp had stuck to his father-in-law.

The Chicago Journal says there is "apparently" no doubt Mr. Williams will be elected. Is the Journal's faith in the ability of the republicans of the First district to roll up a handsome majority getting shaken? The Journal evidently doesn't read the sign of the times.

If the Madison Democrat will support General Winkler for running on a good platform, why won't it support another republican for running on the same kind of a platform? Among the several things the Democrat must yet learn, is to be consistent.

It seems to be the special business of some to keep on sharpening the political hatchet, and making the dissatisfaction in the republican ranks wider than over. This may be fun, but it does not lead to the greatest success.

Mr. Frank Queen, the late editor and publisher of the New York Clipper, one of the best known sporting papers in the United States, was an exceedingly generous man, and a short time ago built a church in Philadelphia that cost $30,000 and presented it without an innumerable to the congregation. Thirty years ago Mr. Queen was a poor news boy, but by energy, foresight and practical ability, he amassed a fortune out of the Clipper. His death will be sincerely mourned by thousands other than those who weekly read his paper and admired its ability and fairness.

To understand the mischief the prohibitionists have done in Ohio it is only necessary to say that they cast 20,000 votes at the late election. This is more than the democratic plurality, and about all of these 20,000 votes came from the republican party, it can plainly be seen what would have been the result had the prohibitionists wisely followed the dictates of common sense, and voted with the republicans. If the prohibitionists were ordinarily wise in their day and generation, they would never vote to throw the government of the state and the nation in the hands of the democratic party.

They had a broom brigade down in Belmont the other night at which considerable amusement was created by the sale of the brooms. There were three congressional brooms and from the Free Press we learn that the Williams broom was finally bid off to Frank Rogers for $10, the Blackman broom to O. L. Olmstead for $75, and the Winslow broom to Mr. A. Bennett for $5, making a total of $83 paid for the three brooms, and $121.25 for the seventeen brooms. If this is a political straw, the independent candidate does not seem to be sweeping things much at Belmont.

Although there have been some losses on congressmen in Ohio, there are now enough republican congressional districts in the west endangered by local quarrels quarrels to save the house of the Forty eighth congress from falling into the hands of the democratic party. There are some republicans running for congress who seem to think their personal interests are of more importance than the welfare of the republican party, and by this means they appear anxious to give the democrats all the advantage possible. A little more regard for the success of the party, and less ambition to run one's own private claims, will do much to save congress from the hands of the enemy.

The Hon. Neal Dow, the celebrated temperance orator of Maine, and the father of the Maine law, will stir up some parts of the First district for Mr. Blackman, and will speak in Janesville if the funds can be secured. He is not so high-priced as Mr. Ingersoll, but still it requires $30 or $100 to get a good temperance speech from him. Of course his heart is in the business, and from $50 to $100 for a speech on temperance answers as a sort of inspiration, and he makes a better plea for prohibition when his pocket-book is full. Mr. Neal Dow is making more money out of this campaign than the independents. He is paid for speaking, while they pay for the privilege of speaking. According to Colonel Sellers, here is a distinction with a big difference.

Alexander Stephens has no wife, no family, and no relatives, to occupy the Georgia executive mansion with him. But he will not be alone during his term of office. When Mrs. Colquhoun, the wife of the retiring governor, told Mr. Stephens that he could run the executive mansion less than they could because he had no family, he said he had a very large family, and wanted to know how many bedrooms there were in the mansion. When told nine, he reflectively said, "well, I guess I can add more beds if I need them." This is characteristic of Alexander H. Stephens. He will keep open house during his term of office, will not permit his hospitalities to be confined to influential politicians and other men of mark—but he will entertain more of the common people, and especially young men who are struggling with financial difficulties in getting an education. He is a royal man in many ways, and his good deeds are many and will be long remembered.

There are but little more than two weeks before the election takes place, and in that time there should be some active campaign work done in Rock county. There should be no lagging in this business, and whatever there is to do should be done quickly and with all the energy and ability the nature of the issues demand. There should be a vigorous campaign in this out—one that will be telling in the result—an earnest, able, and judicious canvass, with no stone remaining unturned to make the victory in Rock county thoroughly complete and powerfully significant. There should be no exceptions as to nominees, and from the congressman down, each should receive the solid support of the party. Let every republican in Rock county second the motion of the county committee and move on all shoulders to shoulder for a majority which will renew the laurels Rock county has so often won in political contests.

For congressional candidates in Wisconsin, the year eighteen hundred and eighty-two, is wonderfully prolific. There are upwards of thirty running in this state, each district except the Eighth having from four to six. The candidates for the republicans, democrats, and prohibitionists, are as follows, the green-backers not worth mentioning:

FIRST DISTRICT.
Republican—Charles G. Williams, of Janesville.
Democratic—John Winslow, of Janesville.
Prohibition—C. M. Blackman, of White Water.
SECOND DISTRICT.
Republican—John S. Rowell, of Beaver Dam.
Democratic—Daniel H. Sumner, of Waubesa.
Prohibition—Eugene W. Chaffin, of Waubesa.
THIRD DISTRICT.
Republican—E. W. Keyes, of Madison and Geo. C. Hazelton, of Joscobet.
Democratic—Burr W. Jones, of Madison.
Prohibition—J. H. Woodmansee.
FOURTH DISTRICT.
Republican—Fred C. Winkler, of Milwaukee.
Democratic—Peter V. Deuster, of Milwaukee.
FIFTH DISTRICT.
Republican—J. H. Woodmansee, of Milwaukee.
Democratic—George B. Goodwin, of Milwaukee.
SIXTH DISTRICT.
Republican—Richard Grantham, of Oakbrook.
Democratic—Andrew Hahn, of Oakbrook.
Prohibition—Theodore D. Kaneuse, of Appleton.
SEVENTH DISTRICT.
Republican—C. M. Butt, of Virgo.
Democratic—Gilbert M. Woodward, of La Crosse.
Prohibition—B. F. Parker, of Mauston.
EIGHTH DISTRICT.
Republican—Wm. T. Price, of Black River Falls.
Anti-Monopoly Democrat—W. F. Bailey, of Eau Claire.

NINTH DISTRICT.
Republican—Isaac Stephenson, of Marinette.
Democratic—Gilbert L. Park, of Stevens Point.
Prohibition—H. H. Woodmansee.
Politics is so mixed up this fall that some of the districts are in doubt. Of course Williams, Genthner, Butt, Stephenson and Price—five republicans—will be elected; and so will Sumner and Rankin—two democrats. The other districts are in doubt. The election of Jones in the Third district as against Keyes and Hazelton, seems to be probable, and there is a strong hope that General Winkler will defeat Denster in the Milwaukee district.

TRAGEDY.

Three Prominent Citizens of Knoxville, Tenn., Kill Each Other in a Street Affray.

One The Wealthiest Man in Tennessee.

The Mabrys Have Figured in Former Tragedies.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 19.—This morning, a few minutes after 10 o'clock, Gen. Joseph A. Mabry, Major Thomas O'Connor and Joseph A. Mabry, Jr., were killed in a shooting affray. The difficulty began yesterday afternoon by Gen. Mabry attacking Major O'Connor and threatening to kill him. This was the fair grounds, and O'Connor told Mabry that it was not the place to settle their differences. Mabry then told O'Connor he should not live. It seems Mabry was armed, and O'Connor was not.

The cause of the difficulty was an old feud about the transfer of some property from Mabry to O'Connor. Later in the afternoon Mabry sent word to O'Connor that he would kill him on sight. This morning O'Connor was standing in the door of the Mechanics' National bank, of which he was president. Gen. Mabry and another gentleman walked down Gay street on the opposite side from the bank. O'Connor stepped into the bank got a shot-gun, took deliberate aim at Gen. Mabry and fired. Mabry fell dead, being shot in the left side. As he fell, O'Connor fired again, the shot taking effect in Mabry's right thigh. O'Connor then rushed into the bank and got another shot-gun. About this time Joseph A. Mabry, Jr., son of General Mabry, came running down the street, followed by O'Connor until within forty feet, when young Mabry fired a pistol, the shot taking effect in O'Connor's right breast, passing through the body near the heart. The second shot, O'Connor turned and fired, the charge taking effect in young Mabry's right breast, and side. He fell, pierced with twenty bullets, and almost immediately expired. Major Mabry shot and killed O'Connor. Major Mabry tried to shoot but fell back dead.

The whole tragedy occurred within two minutes and was over in less than five minutes after being shot. General Mabry had about thirty bullets in his body. A bystander was painfully wounded in the thigh and another in the arm. Four other men, including Major Mabry, were shot and wounded. The affair caused great excitement, and Gay street was thronged with a thousand people.

General Mabry and his son were acquitted only a few days ago of the murder of Moses Lusk and Don Lusk, father and son, whom they killed some weeks ago. Will Mabry was killed by Don Lusk, his murderer. Major Thomas O'Connor was the wealthiest man in the state.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17.—Major O'Connor, who was killed this morning at Knoxville, was known here as a member of the firm of R. G. Huston & Co., the contractors, who completed the Cincinnati Southern railroad. The firm was composed of R. G. Huston, Major O'Connor and Mr. Neely. Major O'Connor made a most favorable impression on all who met him. He was a keen-sighted business man, having accumulated a fortune since the war, estimated at $1,000,000. At the same time he was level-headed and devoted to his duties. He was a devoted father, and his wife and children were noted for their interest in their mother, and his liberal assistance. His partner, R. G. Huston, resides here. Upon him, as well as upon numerous friends, the news falls like a cruel blow.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 20.—One year ago Christmas Eve Will Mabry was killed under peculiar circumstances. His death grew out of a feud between the families of Joseph A. Mabry, Sr., and Joseph A. Mabry, Jr., and that Don Lusk and his father, Moses Lusk, were prominent, and it is generally reported that much blood might be shed between the two families.

It will also be remembered that Don Lusk and his father, Moses Lusk, had an altercation in the recorder's office with Joseph A. Mabry, Sr., and Joseph A. Mabry, Jr., and that Don Lusk and his father, Moses Lusk, were prominent, and it is generally reported that much blood might be shed between the two families.

Revolt in New Hampshire.
BOSTON, Oct. 20.—Some of the Republicans in New Hampshire are in open revolt against the rule of Secretary Chandler. Bainbridge Washburn, ex-United States senator, in accepting an invitation to speak to the disaffected Republicans of Cheshire county, states that their candidate for governor was nominated by a shamless bribery, and that the secretary of the navy stepped from the dock of a warship into the convention.

Superintendent of the New York Central.
NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—J. N. Toney has been removed from the superintendency of the New York Central road, and Joseph Franklin will take the position at the end of this month.

Yellow Fever.
NINE deaths from yellow fever occurred at Pensacola, yesterday, and fifty-three cases were reported, among them being five children of Dr. Whitney. The epidemic has made its appearance on a ranch near Brownsville, Texas.

Hog Cholera.
DES MOINES, Oct. 20.—Hog cholera of a new and virulent type has broken out near Iowa City, where Jacob Seller has lost over four hundred hogs. The afflicted animals seem almost rotten from cancerous sores.

New York as a British Port.
NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—"Sunset" Cox, who is a member of the congressional committee to investigate the decline of American shipping, says he proposes to treat New York as a British port.

THE SCOVILLES.

Beginning of the Inquiry as to Mrs. Scoville's Sanity—The Opening Speech by Her Husband for the Prosecution.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—The Scoville alleged insanity case was called up before Judge Loomis in the county court yesterday.

Mrs. Scoville and her little daughter sat together on one side of a table, and Mr. Scoville, his oldest daughter and his son-in-law, W. H. Harp, sat on the other side.

Mr. Scoville conducted the prosecution, and Mr. Blanchard represented Mrs. Scoville. County Attorney Bliss inquired whether the defendant Mrs. Frances Scoville, would be a burden on the county if found insane.

Mr. George Scoville answered that he would bear for keeping her in an asylum—the best in the state if necessary.

Mr. Scoville then proceeded to examine the witness individually. He asked them whether they had any opinion formed in the house, also, whether they had formed an opinion of the late Guilan's sanity.

In opening his case, Mr. Scoville said that he had not expected to take any part in the questioning or addressing the jurors. Another legal gentleman had been engaged to take charge of the case, and he would probably be present this morning. He said that he was about to engage in the most unpleasant duty of his life. It would be shown that the family to which the defendant belonged by birth was one of the most distinguished in the state, from the year 1790, and that out of eleven children of her father five had died of insanity, and two others were afflicted with diseases which were closely allied to insanity, and might be said to run into it.

It would be shown that the grandfather of the defendant, Mr. Guilan, was a peculiar man, though not strictly insane, and that he died of consumption, a disease closely allied to insanity. It would be shown in the examination that insanity was hereditary in the family, and that from three or four children of the defendant's father's family had died of consumption. Another child in the family died of a violent erysipelas, but not until he had become incapacitated for business. The defendant's father died insane. A child of each of two sisters had been or was insane.

As to the defendant herself, she had been afflicted since a year or two after her marriage with epileptic fits; that she could not lie, or sit, or stand, or sleep without having several thicknesses of shawls or blankets about her head, indicating, he thought, an affection of the brain. It would be shown that she was subject to strange caprices, and to serious trouble attending a certain stage of life. The trouble which came upon her at the time her brother shot President Lincoln, and which she could not control, the result has been that she could not perform the ordinary duties of life at home reasonably. It might thus be shown that there was insanity in the family, and that the defendant could be removed by proper treatment to an asylum. Some of the facts of private life might be brought out during the examination.

HEAVY FAILURE.

A Firm Engaged in the Manufacture of Woollens at Dedham, Mass., Suspended, with Liabilities of $430,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—R. V. Stiers & Co., manufacturers of woollens at Dedham, Mass., failed yesterday. Liabilities, $430,000; nominal assets, $225,000. It is alleged that up to within a few days, the creditors of the concern have been misled by false statements concerning its resources. Some months ago, it is stated, the firm claimed to have a large excess of assets over their liabilities. William S. Slater is an importer to a large amount of the concern's output, and as it was believed in excess of assets over their liabilities. Slater's statement was generally accepted. An investigation, however, disclosed that he does not own a large amount of property, and some recent transactions have been made which have a questionable appearance.

Irish Affairs.
DUBLIN, Oct. 20.—The committee of the National league has adopted an address to the Irish people in substance as follows: "The landlords have combined with the purpose of breaking the spirits of the tenants. The dismay which the present scale of judicial rents has created among the agricultural population is the most serious and more necessary now than ever that the tenants should be reunited in a vigilant and lawful association for the purpose of protecting themselves from injustice. The inspiration of our struggles is to transfer all local power and patronage from privileged classes to the hands of the people, and so fortify the people for the work of self-government."

Mr. London, the delegate to the Irish National conference, invited by the conference attempting to speak, written to The Freeman's Journal that he knows he has drawn upon himself the hatred of the Irish members of parliament, particularly that of Thomas Power, O'Connor. He (London) says he has always held that the Americans subscribed to assist the victims of the tyranny of the landlords, and to give limited salaries to Irish members of parliament.

A Cut Throat and Kills a Boy.
LOUISVILLE, Oct. 20.—A singular and fatal accident befel the five-year-old son of Mr. Thomas Galt, a gardener, residing about five miles south of the city, on the Third street road. It appears that the little fellow was seated upon the floor playing with his toys, when the house-cat was passing along upon some shelving, and by a quick movement, the little knuckled a pistol from the shelf, and sent whirling the floor it was discharged, scorching a ball through the heart of the child, killing it instantly. The noise of the discharge caused the other members of the family to rush into the room where the horror occurred, when the little one was found breathing his last. A messenger was sent to the city for a coroner's inquest, who went out and held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of death from purely accidental causes.

Salvini's Arrival.
NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Signor Thomas Salvini, the Italian tragedian, who arrived here yesterday, says he will appear in this city in "King Lear" in February, after he has made his trip through the country. It will be his last attempt in this character. He says to survive every time he thinks of the last; but he believes he can preserve the character as it has never been presented before. For five years he has been studying the character, and he believes he has overcome all the obstacles which beset all who have essayed it.
